

English Camp for Kids

Designing English lessons for young students in remote areas of Thailand to write a short essay in English and for senior students majoring in English to apply their knowledge when teaching the lessons

Location North of Thailand

Dr. Maia's father is well known for his surgery mobile unit run over 30 years to treat ear diseases, free of charge, throughout Thailand and neighbouring countries.

Greatly inspired by the work of her father, Dr. Maia started many small projects for the communities around the area she was living in; a few of which were recognised as quality-of-life enhancement projects.

As a language teacher (with a passion to write), Dr. Maia always spends time exploring new ways to develop writing skills of people with diverse backgrounds, especially those with limited backgrounds in English language.

She has, for years, run an English camp, with her own funding, to train a group of new graduates, to be ready to serve their own communities when back home.
